Mother's Day Special

La Dolce Vita
10 Years Old Rose Gold

At the crossroads of French refinement and Italian passion, Château Blanc was born from the union of two proud winegrowing traditions. Perched on sun-drenched hillsides overlooking the Mediterranean, the estate cultivates grapes on limestone and clay soils, kissed by the Provençal sun and cooled by the Mistral winds. Inspired by ancestral techniques from both Provence and Northern Italy, the grapes are slowly pressed and gently fortified with grape spirit to preserve their natural sweetness and aromatic intensity. La Dolce Vita is a celebration of patience and craftsmanship, with the selected wines aged for an average of 10 years in large neutral French oak casks, gaining richness and a radiant elegance.

TASTING NOTE

With glints of rose gold, La Dolce Vita opens with aromas of candied orange peel, toasted almonds, acacia honey, and a whisper of Provençal herbs. The palate is sumptuous and silky, unfolding layers of dried apricots, lavender-infused nougat, and a hint of maraschino cherry, all leading to a graceful, lingering finish.

Banksy 1974? - Present

Banksy - an enigma, very well known by his thought provoking street art, yet his real name and face remain carefully hidden under wraps. When Time magazine selected him for its list of the world's 100 most influential people in 2010, he gave them a picture of himself with a recyclable paper bag over his head. Banksy's anonymity is as a part of his brand as his art. He is known mostly for his murals, which keep popping up around the globe, from Vienna to San Francisco, Barcelona to Paris, Ukraine to West Bank, on walls, bridges, streets, museums and war torn buildings alike. He has become the voice of the speechless and the oppressed, his art mocking the status quo, pointing to social injustices around us, leaning on satire and dark humor at times. Besides his favored platform of gritty urban walls, his art has appeared on canvas, and in the form of conceptual sculpture as well as a film, a documentary - "Exit Through the Gift Shop", which was nominated for an Academy Award in 2011. His art commands hundreds of thousands of dollars in the auction houses of Britain and America. He has set up a tongue-in-cheek titled organization, Pest Control, to authenticate the real Banksy artwork, which also protects him from prying outsiders. Hiding behind a paper bag and an e-mail, Banksy relentlessly controls his own narrative.

It is speculated that Banksy was born in Bristol in 1974, where he started with freehand graffiti in the early 1990s probably as a teen. Later on his technique morphed into stenciled, spray-painted art. He purportedly confided in his friend, author Tristan Manco, that this method was a convenient way to create and replicate his art on highly visible public landmarks unnoticed (usually overnight) to keep his identity unknown due to the illegal nature of this work. In his own words, "As soon as I cut my first stencil I could feel the power there. I also like the political edge. All graffiti is low-level dissent, but stencils have an extra history. They've been used to start revolutions and to stop wars."

Banksy's most loved piece is 'Girl with Balloon', depicted here in this poster (bottom middle). It has been replicated several times in different media. His other notable pieces are 'Flower Thrower' (top right), 'Kids on Guns' (top middle). And his most expensive artwork ever sold till date is 'Love is in the Bin'. This piece, originally titled 'Girl with Balloon', was partially shredded during a Sotheby's auction in 2018. There was a hidden shredder installed inside the painting's frame, which turned on as soon as the painting was sold for $1.4 million. Then it jammed after shredding half of the canvas, the shredded artwork was later renamed and sold for $25.4 million in October 2021.

Banksy's stencils feature striking and humorous images occasionally combined with slogans, sort of a silent protest, civil disobedience. These messages range from anti war, capitalism, consumerism or establishment. Subjects often include rats, apes, policemen, soldiers, children, and the elderly. The surfaces he uses to paint on, usually the walls, are short lived. Sometimes entire walls are cut and sold along with the art, but mostly his work gets whitewashed over or destroyed. Most of his works exist only in memory, or photographs. Out of 52 of his documented street murals, 40 have disappeared altogether. Regardless of all the controversy, and short lived nature of his art and his need for concealed identity, there is a direct connection between this unique artist of our times and his admirers. As per him, "There's a whole new audience out there, and it's never been easier to sell (art), you don't have to go to college, drag 'round a portfolio, mail off transparencies to snooty galleries or consort with someone powerful, all you need now is a few ideas and a broadband connection. This is the first time the essentially bourgeois world of art has belonged to the people. We need to make it count."
